What a Pasture Should Be. In most parts of the world the pasture is the main reliance of persons who keep cattle and sheep, as well as young horses. With many these animals only pay their way when they are turned out to grass. They do not pay the cost of the food they eat and the care they require. Few farmers produce milk during the winter at profit. Few dairy farmers expect to make money except during the when the feed in the pastures is The pasture is the sanitarium for all kinds of farm animals that are out of kinds of farm animals for are one of condition. A horse that has been losing flesh all winter is expected "to pick up" as soon as it is turned into the pasture. The expectations are generally realized. Animals that have recently dropped young will recover their strength after they have been to a good pasture a few weeks. In this climate lambs are very likely to die if they come before the grass starts in the spring. It seems to be necessary sty, 700,000 to defray the expenses of the mililary operations in the northwest up to the General Notes. District reports on the appearance of the crops in all parts of France are now appearing in the agricultural papers. In the south, southeast, southwest, and west but little damage the cereals appears to have resulted from the unseasonable weather, but there are some complaints of defective plant, and of the prevalence of weeds. On the whole, prospects in these districts are considered favorable. In the center, east, northeast, and north, on the other hand, frost has injured the condition of the wheat and out crops very generally, though it is hoped that they will recover their lost vigor under the influence of warm weather. Reports from the north-west are for the most part favorable. The latest advices from Holland and Germany confirm previous complaints of injury from the inclemency of the canker-worm is easily destroyed if the right means are taken. The female moth is wingless, and must crawl up the tree to lay its eggs upon the branches. All that is necessary is to branches. All that is necessary is to prevent this wingless moth from crawling up the stems of the trees. This is done by putting around the trees bands of paper smeared with printer's lnk, or a mixture of tar and fish-oil, which will not dry readily, and across which the moth can not pass. This is done in the spring, in May, and in August, and there are two broods in a year. If the worms attack the trees they may be destroyed by spray-ing them with water to which Paris green or London purple has been added, using a force-pump and sprinkler for the purpose.

The causes of the superior milk-

Prof. Muttrich, of Berlin, has reached the following conclusions from his forest meteorological researches: 1. The forest exercised a positive influence on the temperature of the air. 2. The daily variations of temperature were lessened by the forest, and in summer more than in winter. 3. The influence of the leafy forest was in summer greater than that of the pine forest, while in winter the tempering influence of the pine forest preponderated over that of the defoliated forest. An attempt to determine the influence of attempt to determine the influence of the forest on the mean annual temperature led to no sure results.

It is stated, says a London paper, that at the present time nearly twenty thousand acres of land are uncultiva-ted in Berkshire, in the neighborhood of Lambourne, and within sixty miles of London. Cork bricks are manufactured in the following manner: The cork is forced from woody particles by a winnowing process, and the wind from the ventilator throws the cork into a second machine, which cuts it in pieces. They are drawn up in buckets and thrown into a mill, which grinds them to an impalpable powder. This is kneaded with a suitable cement, pressed into brick shape, dried in the air, and atterward subjected to artificial heat. It is claimed that these bricks resist moisture, deaden sound, and act as non-conductors of heat.

appreciates and declares the value of that preparation, because his nephew, who is a son of Danish Vice-Consul Schmidt, was pronounced incurable when the remedy. Warner's Safe Cure, was begun. "Yes" said his father, "I was very skeptical but since taking that remedy the boy is well."

I regret to note that ex-President Arthur is said to be a victim of this terrible disease. He ought to live but the probabilities are that since authorized remedies can not cure him, his physicians will not advise him to save his life, as so many thousands have done, by the use of Warner's Safe Cure which Gen, Christiansen, at Drexel, Morgan & Co.'s., told me he regarded "as a wonderful remedy."

Well, I suspect the hero of the book cured himself by the same means. The internal evidence points very strongly to this conclusion.

his readers:
- If, my friend, you have such an experience as I have portrayed, do not put your trust in physicians to the exclusion of other remedial agencies. They have no monopoly over disease they would far prefer that their pa-tients should go to Heaven direct from their powerless hands than that they should be saved to earth by the use of iny 'unauthorized' means.

And that the author's condemnation is too true, how many thousands duped, and yet rescued, as he was, can personally testify?

Shun the Bilious Man.

When you travel for pleasure shun the company of the bilious man. well enough to have him along you simply want discipline, or feel that you ought to do penance for past misdeeds; but if you go for a good time see that no man with an indifferent liver joins the party. Many im-probable things are possible, but hav-ing unclouded fun in the company of a man, with a skin full of phlematic misfortune is not one of them. So says Griggins, who has just returned from New Orleans, with a man in tow who didn't once get within iling dis-tance of a smile during the tire trip.

Can you spell? Well, yes; almost anybody can spell. Then spell this, and make out what it means. If you can't, then pass it on to your next H-B-E-E-I-I-N-N-O-O-R-R-R-S-S-T-T-W Don't say it out loud, but just whis-

In Love with Beauty.

Oh, happy he who is in love with beauty! to whom flowers are a heavenly language, day and night and weeks and months and years and centuries a rhythmic song; music a revelation of the infinite and divine; seas and skies, and mountains and plains voiceless echoes of the everlasting life. Oh, happy he who can rise out of his work, and from this heavenly realm of cult ure look down upon it, and recognize the fact that it is the only minister to a life as far above it as the heavens are above the earth.—J. G. Holland.

Over the Bioux City & Pacific Railroad and Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha Ry.

A trip northward to St. Paul and Minneapolis over this route, via Sioux City, is one of the most delightful to be found in the whole country. Solid trains, splendidly equipped, are run on fast time from Council Bluffs, with elegant sleeping care through without chance between St. Paul and Kansas City, where connections are made with all lines west and southwest. There are many points of interest on this section of this great railway system north of Sioux City, and a few of them should be specified. This has been termed the Undine Region, and probably no more beautiful and prolific country exists. There are a succession of fine lakes, many meandering streams, groves and forests, and excellent meadows breaking the luturiant rolling prairie.

Worthington, one hundred and eighty-two streams, groves and forests, and excellent meadows breaking the luminant rolling prairie.

Worthington, one hundred and eighty-two miles from St. Paul, is an attractive village of over 1,300 inhabitants, handsomely laid out, well cared for, and occupied by a community of refined, social people. It is beautifully situated between East and West Okabena lakes, both among the most charming of the smaller lakes of the State. The west lake has a fine, sandy beach, and part of its abores are bludy. It is about seven miles in circumference, and a fine drive has been completed more than three-fourths of the distance sround it, close to the shore. The east lake, though not so deep, is about as farce as the west. The waters of the main lake dicbarge into Okabena Creek, and thence by the less Moines River into the Missishpyl, and also through the east lake and Flos d River into the Missouri, thus showing that Worthington is on the crown of land. It is 1,300 feet above sea level, and this elevation gives it a clear, pure, bracing stunesphere, very beneficial to people suffering from sickness of bilious or malarial types, from asthma or from pulmonary complaints. The fish in these lakes are pike, pickorel, buffalo, perch, bass, and ea-fish, and the Okabena lakes have been stocked with land-tocked asimon and trout. Prairie chickees, wild geese, sand-hill cranes, five species of ampes, twenty kinds of ducks, brant, black groce, prairie pigeons, plover, and many other species of winged game are here in their locked salmon and trout. Prairie chickens, wild geese, sand-full caraes, fve species of snipes, twenty kinds of ducks, brant, black geese, prairie pigeons, plover, and many other species of winged game are here in their season, and hunters from all parts of the country congregate to meet them.

About thirty miles by railroad southeast of Worthington is quite a famous resort, Spirit Lake, Iowa. It is the finest of a large group of beautiful lakes abounding in romantic and picturesque scenery. Here is a pretty village, and the best of hotel accommodations. Hunting and fishing are excellent in this region.

On the Rock River branch of this railroad, and thirty-two miles from the junction Worthington, is the prosperous town of Lawrenc. A short distance from the town are the celebrated like Mounds, whose eraggy heights of Jasper stome rise two hundred feet from the charming valley of Rock River, which stretches sway in unparalleled heauty. Hotels, and hunting are all that could be desired here.

Soux Falls, just over the boundry in Dakota, at the end of this division of the railroad, is one of the brightest of the growing cities of the Northwest.

It presents many attractions for tourists, has good hotels and entituted people, and is surrounded by a handsome country.

Around the village of Slayton, twenty-six miles from Heron Lake, on the Fipestome branch of the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Ounta Railway, are a number of fine lakes which invite the sportensam who desires to find a country that has been but little hunted. These lakes vary from even miles in length to two miles, very picturesque, and afford fine camping grounds. There are dusks groce, craues, cnickens, plover, entipe, pelicans, swan, herons, and Jack rabbils, with the usual varieties of fish, Slayton has a new El2,000 hotel, and is an attractive place. Hadley, five miles west of Slayton, is also the centre of a fine sporting country.
